Sony Video Conferencing Lease Program Makes Pricing Affordable for All

For $99/Month All Companies Can Save Time and Money, Boost Productivity

Amherst, NY, September 21, 2011 — Stampede, the leading value-added distributor of professional audio video (ProAV) solutions and the exclusive distributor of Sony Video Conferencing equipment, has announced a new lease program for Sony Video Conferencing products with pricing now affordable for all.

“We are offering a quality Sony Video Conferencing system starting at less than one hundred dollars a month,” said Eric Murphy, Vice President of the Visual Communications Group at Stampede. “Video conferencing has never been more affordable. If a company has been thinking about getting on board with this incredible cost-saving and productivity-boosting technology, now is the time to do it.”

The base model in the lease program is the PCS-G50 at $99 a month. The five-year lease also includes a five-year service and support contract and the offer of a $1 buy-out.

“We know how important it is for people and businesses to stay connected,” stated Murphy. “Now with the cost of these products lower than a plane ticket, you can have the same meeting from the comfort of your own office, all while saving money. What was once a luxury for large organizations is now affordable for any size company.”

The new Sony lease program pricing will be valid until December 31, 2011. Contact Stampede for exclusive pricing.
