Stampede Expands Presence in Home Theater Market with Lovan USA High-end home theater furniture now available at Stampede

BUFFALO, N.Y., August 28, 2006 — Stampede, a leading value-added distributor of presentation and home theater technology, today signed a distribution agreement with Lovan USA, one of the world's largest manufacturers of audio video support systems. Effective immediately, the entire Lovan USA line will be available for purchase by dealers in the United States.

“Stampede has always succeeded in delivering a wide range of high-tech audio/visual equipment options to our dealers,” said Kevin Kelly, vice president of sales and marketing at Stampede. “Now, with the addition of Lovan USA, we can go further and offer our dealers an entire audio/visual experience for their customers that is complete with high-end seating, audio video racks and speaker stands.”

Lovan USA products are designed to work together to provide a complete customized home theater experience. Its audio video racks have a modular construction and feature a patented trisolation system to provide superior stability and isolation from sound vibration for sensitive electronic components. Lovan's line of speaker stands – including the Affiniti II and Trellice series – are made of extremely heavy, inert material such as carbon steel to ensure maximum performance and minimum vibration from any speaker they support.

“We are excited to bring this new product offering to Stampede dealers,” said Gary Le, managing director at Lovan USA. “With the addition of Lovan products, Stampede dealers will enjoy greater flexibility and choice in home theater products that will enhance their business.”

Select Lovan USA products will be showcased at Stampede's booth (#609) at the Custom Electronic Design and Installation Association (CEDIA) Expo from September 14–17, 2006, at the Colorado Convention Center in Denver. Stampede representatives will be on hand to discuss Lovan USA and a variety of complimentary audio/video solutions with visitors to the Expo.
