Stampede Launches New Web Site with Added Functionality The much-anticipated site offers customers with a new purchasing option

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 5, 2005 — Stampede, a leader in value-added home theater and presentation distribution, has launched its new Web site. The updated site, which has been in the works for the past few months, has officially been launched today.

Keeping its old domain <http://www.stampede-us.com>, the site will serve as a customer-friendly portal. Dealers, after receiving a log in and password, are able to perform new tasks including ordering online; viewing inventory, availability, product information, i.e., specifications, dealer pricing and user manuals; as well as retrieving invoiced orders with tracking information.

The renovated Web site has been released just months after the company's first product catalog. Stampede executives believe the combination of the two will serve as a creative solution to customer needs by further extending the company's value-added services.

About Stampede
