STAMPEDE OPENS FOURTH REGIONAL DISTRIBUTION CENTER TO SERVE SOUTHEAST AND SOUTHWEST STATES

Additional distribution centers planned for the western part of North America as Stampede delivers on its promise to localize product inventories to ensure rapid shipment deliveries to dealers.

AMHERST, NEW YORK, November 8, 2012 —Underscoring its commitment to maintain local inventories of products in major regions throughout North America, Stampede Presentation Products, Inc. today announced the opening of its fourth North American distribution center in Duluth, Georgia. The center will launch Stampede's new end-user centric Unified Communications demonstration center and feature a new video conferencing technologies showroom. According to Stampede President & COO Kevin Kelly, the new center reflects the company's commitment to keeping its extensive ProAV inventory local to dealers.

"This new distribution center will provide our dealers in the southeast and southwest with low cost, fast, and efficient shipping services," said Kelly. "The center will also serve as our first Unified Communications demonstration center that will display the latest visual conferencing technologies available."

In addition to the demo center and technologies showroom, the center will provide dealers with job site delivery, shipping, and logistics. The center will serve the southeast region of the United States, including dealers in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina, as well as a portion of the southwest territory.

The new Atlanta-area location is Stampede's fourth center and is located at 1500 Boggs Road in Duluth, Georgia. Other centers are located in Buffalo, Phoenix and Miami. Development has already begun on new facilities that will soon open in the western region of the United States.

"Our goal is to establish additional distribution centers around the country, so we can localize product inventories and provide Stampede dealers with low cost and fast shipment deliveries, wherever they are located," added Kelly. "We plan to keep expanding throughout the country and already have plans for the western region. Soon, every Stampede dealer in the country will have a local distribution center that will undoubtedly enhance their business.”
